Relationship of radiological changes of masticatory muscles and mandibular condylar area to temporomandibular joint disorders among Kuwaiti subjects. A total of 60 individuals comprising 30 patients with temporomandibular disorders (TMD) and 30 healthy controls were selected for this study. All 60 subjects had a computed tomographic scan of the head using the helical mode. Multiplanar reconstruction (MPR) was used to create reformatted images to allow morphometric evaluation of the soft tissue. The mandibular condylar area and the masticatory muscles were measured on each side. The statistical analysis showed that in patients with TMD there was enlargement of the mandibular condyle and the masticatory muscles compared with the controls. There was strong positive correlation between the mandibular condyle and the masseters, as well as between the left and right masseters. The results of this study may lead to better understanding of the pathophysiology of TMD and may provide accurate diagnostic and therapeutic measures in patients with TMD.

fenced-off Smuggler's Cove in Dannemora, NY was the site of a prison break, organized by a dozen or more inmates on a protest over poor conditions at the prison. Dubbed the Dannemora Rebellion, the four-day event included a fight between inmates and members of New York State Police, and resulted in the death of two inmates and the recapture of 15 prisoners. It is the most recent incident in a long line of prison breaks -- almost two centuries worth -- including the famous Fenway Park Prison Farm Riot in 1854, and the Lexington Hill Escape in 1836. And like past escapes, the Smuggler's Cove riot had several features that foreshadowed modern prison escapes. One notable feature was the help prisoners received from FBI informant Billy Dilworth. In 1853, Dilworth sent word of a planned escape to the guard at the prison and informed that a mob was waiting to free the inmates. The prison warden did not believe Dilworth's statement, and it was not until several prison guards were later killed by a mob that he, too, believed the tip was true. Of course, it was. The other common element in prison escapes is the existence of inmates with skills other than escaping. During the Smuggler's Cove riot, a group of skilled escape artists included one inmate who had operated a shortwave radio from his cell for months, another inmate who had set up extensive communications among inmates, another who had operated on other inmates, and still another who had years of experience weaving clothes to help him escape, and who also had experience with guns. The Smuggler's Cove riot was not the first example of well-organized, well-coordinated breakouts by multiple prisoners -- with much of the planning done on the inside. In 1834, a group of eight inmates helped to escape two of the three condemned inmates from the New Orleans State Prison, and with some planning and preparation they returned to the prison in the middle of the night to overpower the guards. In 1866, a group of five inmates at the infamous Parchman Farm in Mississippi helped to plan and successfully

The Bulls (5-3, 2-0 SBC) play their only home game of the season this weekend against the Stephen F.

Austin (4-4, 1-1 SBC) Longhorns at the United Spirit Arena. Game time is 12 p.m. Central Time. The Falcons, who open this weekend's SBC slate at Murray State on Saturday, followed their nine-point loss at Wichita State with a 69-55 victory over Saint Louis. Lamar's Trae Perkins led the way with a team-high 18 points, including a clutch three pointer with 28 seconds left to lift the Tigers to an 85-82 victory over UT Arlington. Perkins grabbed a career-high 12 rebounds in the win. Trevor Speights (12 points), who was 4-of-5 from long range in the game, and junior forward Khalid Aarin were the only other Tiger to reach double figures. UT Arlington (3-7, 0-2) were led by Kevin Ollie's two point game with 17 and they held a 42-33 edge in rebounding, but had a hard time getting to the free throw line. The Roadrunners shot just 37.6 percent from the floor. Jaylen Handsberry and the Wuerffel Trophy-winning Auburn Tigers slipped to 5-3, 1-1 in the Southwestern Conference following a 77-64 loss to Southern Miss at home on Thursday night. The Tigers led by just one point, 22-21, at halftime, 38-37, early in the second half, but the Golden Eagles pulled away to get the 12th consecutive win. Javorius Allen scored 16 points, Joe McKnight added 13 and UCLA had a 16-8 lead late in the first half before the Golden Eagles scored the last eight points of the half. Allen added another five to complete a 16-3 run and the Tigers fell behind 43-37 at the break. Alabama-Birmingham
