FIFA Champion Series esports competition provides an opportunity for 20+ esports professionals from around the world to compete as one team in a single-elimination, best-of-five bracket for the FIFA™ 20 FIFA Champion Series esports tournament. The competition format consists of two single elimination rounds (Duel, Group Stage) followed by the Crown Plaza LIVE Playoff (Single-Elimination) which culminates with the Grand Final. Broadcast in high-definition, the FIFA Champion Series tournament consists of eight official matches that will be streamed LIVE for esports fans around the world. Each group game will be contested in a best-of-three set with the winner of each match advancing to the following round. Team North America is looking to avenge its heartbreaking elimination from last year's FIFA World Cup™ semifinals and reclaim its place as the best of North America. Which country do you think will represent North America in the FIFA 22 FIFA Championship Series? Vote now! The fourth ranked nation, featuring Austria and Slovenia, is looking to take the lead in its group with a tight group of regional powers. The South American group is a classic battle between Brazil and Uruguay and the African group includes Senegal and the impressive Cape Verde. In the past, the African teams have won the African World Cup™, so it would not be a surprise to see Morocco take the lead out of the African group. The North American team is playing for pride this tournament. The United States and Canada have the most gold medals of any region in the FIFA World Cup™. Team North America holds a slim 1-0 record over Team Europe in the FIFA World Cup™ this past summer. Last year, Team North America edged Team Europe, 1-0, in the 2017 finale of the FIFA World Cup™. The top two teams in this year's FIFA 22 FIFA Champions Series will each receive $50,000 in

prize money. The event is being streamed LIVE over the next three days: Canada Day | 09/08/19 - 13:30 UTC | twitch.tv/fifa.ca After the successful finish of the PES League, EA SPORTS FIFA 20 for PlayStation®4 Pro and Xbox One X will be available in retail stores starting October 2, 2019 for $59.99. On October 30, 2019 at 6:00 PM PDT, FIFA 20 will be available on Origin™ A new Ultimate Team pack
