

because you see a couple of trainers with logos associated with your breed, you're interested in learning more about a particular breed. this is where you'll find the forum. each forum is a social media site that allows all of us to stay connected to one another. you'll find training advice, tips, and stories as well as general pet topics. we can also stay connected to our trainers through their blog or even their social media. this is a social media platform for a gathering. forums are a networking platform for professional pet trainers and dog lovers. if you post any pictures on the forum, be aware of your safety and the safety of others. posting professional images of dogs is ok, but posting images of dogs posing with drugs, alcohol, fighting, or people who are threatening is not. when you are stuck in the mire of worrying about something you have the power to change, its a struggle to work out the solution.in these times, take a moment to think about what the consequences of not making it work are. consequences such as shutting down your business, no longer being your own boss, and having to go back to the 9 to 5 you started your own training business to escape.when fear strikes and you have the ability to control what is happening, or at least influence it, take some time to motivate yourself by considering the alternatives if you fold now. when great things happen, its pure joy announcing them to pet owners across the world! fear free pets, whose mission is to take pet out of petrified, has launched a new program that will teach dogs (and other pets) to enjoy veterinary visits. drum roll, please! theyve launched a fear free animal trainer certification program for qualified dog trainers, which is a huge step in the right direction for everyone.

you can learn from our trainers without being a complete novice. you'll learn to read signs and correct stress because of them without realizing it, and we help you to learn how to implement positive reinforcement, which is the basis of our training. you'll also learn to read body language, how to judge the appropriate exercise for a given dog and others, and how to teach what you learn. our methods are completely balanced to prevent any dog lover from having a problem. even if you're a dog lover, you can use our tips and get some very practical, important and relevant knowledge. but don't go for the quick fix - it won't work because it doesn't recognize that breed-specific behavior is different. accepting responsibility and getting right down to what you want is the start of what it takes to make it happen. i'm not the most hard core or motivational expert around, but part of what it means to be successful is to learn to let go and control what you can control. it's a call to action that reminds me of the message we learned in elementary school: wake up, clean your room, and brush your teeth. if you do this every day, you'll be ready for the next day and feel prepared to deal with things as they come. fear free means being capable of facing life's setbacks. it means rising above the worst that can happen and staying ready to deal with challenges as they come. fear free is not the absence of fear; it is the ability to control one's response to the things that scare us. fear free training is a way to learn to do this at every level of our training. the more we apply what we have learned, the easier it is to maintain our ability to deal with fear.
