don't point to the newest version of the answer Here's an example of a link to my answer on Stack Overflow that doesn't point to the newest version of the answer. Why are some links broken? I just noticed it a few minutes ago while searching for it, and I couldn't immediately find an answer. This is a new answer, so I don't know if it's a bug or there's an intentional change. The link is also broken on Meta. A: They are missing the last revision number. The last revision number needs to be added to the link. I.e., it should point to this revision: Mexico's president-elect Andres Manuel Lopez Obrador (right) with his wife, Beatriz Ysabel Duque, watches the first round of Mexico's general elections during a live televised debate at the National Palace, in Mexico City on Sunday.
