Desert Gunner is a fast-paced, game-action game. Forget your regular run and gun games, prepare for Desert Gunner! Take control of a turret and aim at target-rich environment. Keep surviving and unlock new weapons in each episode and level. Feel the action. Just like you, the Desert Gunner is a turret operator. From the scope of his turret, he will examine the area, and pick the target based on its position. Switch easily between the gun, the wheels, and the gunner's seat. It is up to you to destroy the enemy, without destroying yourself. Survive the IED's, bombs, and traps. This is as hardcore as arcade can get. Your gun is never more than a few seconds away, since your gunner is armed with endless ammunition. Pick up powerups to assist your cause, or search the environment for the best weapon. React to the environment. The environment affects every aspect of Desert Gunner. Vehicles are not static in the sand. They flop when you are in a firefight. Your turret blows up when you run over a land mine. Buildings are destroyed by flying tanks and rockets. If the explosions don't kill you, your enemies will. Choose wisely! Weapons and ammunition are unlimited. You never run out of rounds for your pistol, your rifle, your binoculars, or your machine gun. Desert Gunner is the most powerful gun in the game. Master new weapons and upgrade as you go. You can use the weapons and armor of your vehicle as long as you can find them. Using a different vehicle can help with the challenge. Each vehicle has a different configuration, with different weapons. Your ranking will be based on your scores and performance during these missions. Features:

What I need help with: How do I get the background and art assets for the game properly? For the backgrounds, I don't really know where I'm getting them from. For the art: I have the sprites, and where they're supposed to be, in the right file format, the right sizes, etc. What I don't know where/how to get the frame that goes along with the sprite to make them in the right place and in the right size and what to put in their correct spot. That last question is really what this whole post is about, but I have a feeling some of you could handle it on your own. If you could c9d1549cdd

In the first person mode you move the camera with the arrow keys and in Mission mode you have to fight to complete a set of objectives to defeat all enemy planes. You can also make it invincible and invisible to all enemy planes. In World War I there were over 60 different air forces. In this game you can fly with and against them in 3 different game modes. In Classic mode you have to attack enemy planes in a match against 3 other players or AI. After each match you get points, these points go towards the goal you want to achieve, it can be to attack 100 planes, 100 players, 100 tanks or 100 ships. To make this realistic every plane has a location to fly to, a strength and a number of hits it can withstand. The stronger your plane the higher it is positioned in the list, so you have to go for the weaker planes first. Every plane also has its own

Our creative team kicked off Hero's Justice DLC Pack 2 yesterday, and after first heading over to the ChunSoft Europe Studio we have caught up with some of the developers responsible for this matter, including the in-development analyst, designer, director and producer of Hero's Justice -- Ogi Otsuki. Ogi had this to say: "Some say that being a game developer is not easy. We at Chunsoft would agree with them, and yet our work ethic has paid dividends in recent years, proving itself time and time again. I feel ready for anything, but when people ask how we are feeling, I won't feel anything special. We're excited too

When I looked at the screenshots I saw those for Mei Hatsume and Rona the Assassin, the first Hero's Justice DLC Pack 2 DLC that I was introduced to -- the ending is simply beautiful.
