Q: How to find the position of the term in a sentence? I am writing some code where I have a text which is in the following form sentence = "The cat ate the fish." When I want to find the position of the term "fish" in the sentence, it returns me the position as 2 when I expected it to return me as 4. I am sure this is some simple mistake, but I have not figured out where it is.

A: sentence = "The cat ate the fish." word = "fish" print (word in sentence) # True print (word, sentence.index(word)) # 'fish', 0 print (word, sentence.index(word, 2)) # 'fish', 2 print (word, sentence.index(word, 4)) # 'fish', 3

Q: WCF Self-Hosting : How to return objects in an Async method? I was wondering how the client could retrieve the result of an async method call of a service. I have a method that retrieves objects from the server. The "Client" can call this method from any where within its application and pass in a clientId. This method is then called by the server in an async manner and places the objects in an out parameter. The Async should be set to true so that the client can retrieve the result of the call. The problem I am having is how does the client retrieve the result of the call and display it to the user?

Example of the current Async method call : public IEnumerable GetObjects(string clientId) { //get clientId from user through form post //call this method and place return value into an out parameter return this.GetObjectsAsync(clientId).Get 6d1f23a050
