Before you can edit and retouch your photos you have to make a copy of the photo to be edited. Now you can apply your retouching and blending options. It is recommended that you start out by creating a new document. Then use the canvas to make sure it is the size you want it to be and you can move the position of the new graphic onto any of the original graphics. After creating the new canvas, you have to open up your photo that you want to work on. Go to the layers tab at the top of the image. Then you have to select the layer that you would like to adjust and edit. Change the blending options on the new layer so that you can see what changes you have made. After every change you make you will have to find the layer that has the editing and select the command "Reveal All" to make sure the layer is open. Even if you didn't work on a certain layer, it can be revealed by pressing "Reveal All". You can choose to make adjustments to the new layer or any other layer you have on the image. Once you have made your choices, you can then apply the changes to other layers of the image as well. If you want to more layers to change, you would have to do this for all the layers except the first. In order to edit text on the photos, you have to select the type of text you chose to use as it is the "layer". If you would like to try out different things with, you can edit the text by first adding it to a new layer. You can then do whatever you like with the text. e3d0a04c9c

When an artist makes an edit to a selection, the canvas zooms back to a correct size for clearer viewing and better information. When the artist edits a shape in a linked selection or a selection's image is altered, the linked selection or image stays on the same canvas.
